THE OBJECTIVES OF THE STUDY WERE TO DETERMINE (1) THE VOLUME AND NATURE OF STATE EDUCATION AGENCY DOCUMENTS THAT MIGHT BE INCLUDED IN THE ERIC SYSTEM, AND (2) THE MOST EFFECTIVE METHOD OF COLLECTING, SELECTING AND ABSTRACTING THESE DOCUMENTS FOR THE ERIC SYSTEM INCLUDING THE FEASIBILITY OF ESTABLISHING A CLEARINGHOUSE FOR THIS PURPOSE. CRITERIA TO BE USED BY STATE DEPARTMENTS OF EDUCATION IN SELECTING DOCUMENTS WERE DEVELOPED AND A "TRIAL RUN CLEARINGHOUSE" ESTABLISHED TO RECEIVE THESE DOCUMENTS. THE REPORT CONTAINS A COMPLETE LISTING OF THE 1,854 DOCUMENTS SUBMITTED TO THIS CLEARINGHOUSE AND THEIR DISPOSITION TO THE ERIC CLEARINGHOUSES. AN ADDENDUM (LI 000 832) BRINGS THIS REPORT UP TO DATE AND QUESTIONS, IN VEIW OF THE SMALL NUMBER OF STATE AGENCY PUBLICATIONS INCLUDED IN "RESEARCH IN EDUCATION," THE NEED FOR A PERMANENT CLEARINGHOUSE. INTRODUCTION

With the increase in quality and quantity of educational materials produced by state education departments, there has developed a resultant need to devise better means of sharing these materials beyond the boundaries of each state. The ERIC system is seen as the most promising vehicle for this purpose and this study has been conducted to see which of the following alternative methods of submitting documents to ERIC would prove most feasible for future use by state education agencies.

1. Each state agency might screen, abstract and submit to ERIC its own documents in accordance with criteria set by ERIC.
2. Each state agency might submit its documents to the various ERIC documentation centers which would, in turn, screen, abstract, and submit documents to ERIC.
3. One center might receive documents from all state agencies and screen, abstract, and submit them to ERIC.

The objectives of the study therefore were:

1. To determine which of these alternatives would be best and advise accordingly.
2. To determine the volume and nature of state education agency documents that might be included in ERIC.

In order to determine the need for such a study and the direction it should take, data was compiled in answer to these two questions:

1. What was the amount of participation by state education agencies (in terms of documents submitted and accepted by ERIC) during the first year of ERIC operation, 1965-66?
2. What publications are desired by state education agency personnel from other such agencies?

The answer to the first question was obtained by counting the number of state education agency publications for which document resumes were prepared during the first four general mailings from ERIC in 1965-66. The results of this compilation are shown in Table 1.

Total number of states represented 29 .

Total number of documents selected 169 .

The total number of documents in ERIC during 1965-66 was 2740 .

From this it would appear that participation by state education agencies needed to be facilitated.

The second question was answered by the various members of the ten departments represented on the advisory committee (see Appendix A) who contributed lists of those publications of other agencies of most interest to them and the members of their units. A compilation of these responses was used for the general guidelines and criteria sent to liaison members for use in selecting documents to send to ERIC. (see Appendix B)

In addition to the two primary objectives of the study, several other purposes were seen. These included (1) the improvement of knowledge and understanding of the ERIC system and its great potential for improving American education, (2) the establishment of a network of liaison personnel in each state who would be "contact" personnel for ERIC information dissemination, (3) the securing of information from the various states concerning problems of using ERIC, their solutions and suggestions for the future.

METHOD

The advisory committee and representatives of the U. S. Office of Education and other organizations met in New York City in October 1966 to assist in the development of the study. Preparations for the meeting included communication with the established ERIC clearinghouses for information about their plans and activities. In most cases they were in the initial stages of organization but communication was established and the purposes of the study were explained.

The meeting in New York City produced the following recommendations: (For the full report of the meeting see Appendix C.)

A. The Committee recommended that each state education agency make appropriate arrangements, probably by assigning a member of the Department to serve as its ERIC liaison, with needed staff and support, to organize the selection and the transmission of agency documents.

B. The Committee recommended that an agency or clearinghouse be established to which all documents collected in departments would be sent.

C. The Committee recommended that the Education Commission of the States undertake the establishment of this clearinghouse in close collaboration with state education agencies. If this should not be possible, the Committee recommended that the state education agencies jointly establish a clearinghouse with one state education agency undertaking to administer it and seek the necessary funding.

D. It was further recommended by the Committee that the possibility of obtaining Title V ESEA funds for the support of this clearinghouse be explored.

Plans for establishing a "trial run" clearinghouse for state education department publications and the criteria to be used in choosing documents from each department were announced in a memorandum to liaison representatives in each state on November 15, 1966. (see Appendix D)

The first shipment of documents was received on December 11, 1966. 96 cartons were received between this date and April 15, 1967, from 39 states.

The procedures followed during this period consisted of:

1. Acknowledgement of all documents received
2. Numbering of documents received
3. Mailing of two copies of appropriate documents to ERIC clearinghouses and Central ERIC. Retention of certain types of documents of specialized interest for a state education department clearinghouse collection
4. Preparation of a numbered acquisition list giving titles of documents and disposition of each.

RESULTS

1,854 documents were received and processed by the EDSEP clearinghouse. The numbers of documents sent on to various ERIC clearinghouses, retained for a state education department clearinghouse, and the numbers of documents received according to type are contained in Chart 1. The full list of documents received is contained in Appendix F.

Fifty-five state education agencies participated in the study. Liaison representatives for ERIC have now been chosen in 48 state education departments. (see Appendix E for list of liaison representatives.) In those states for which representatives have not yet been chosen, the chief state school officer is sent all correspondence).

Reactions to the study and "feedback" concerning the ERIC system were secured through a questionnaire sent to each department. The answers to each question from the forty questionnaires returned are shown in Table 2.

The method used most frequently was the department memorandum.

1. In what ways have you communicated about the ERIC system to your department?

   - by written bulletin and oral announcements
   - newsletter and memos to staff indicating materials and information available
   - conversations with Superintendent and Deputy Superintendent
   - reports at staff meetings
   - explained in detail at staff meeting of Division and Section Heads, followed up with official letter from State Superintendent for files and future reference
   - system explained to liaison person in each county of state
   - phone calls
   - assisted department members in search for materials
   - annotated bibliographies
   - in connection with collection of items for this study from department form letter to all members of department
   - explaining origin and purpose of ERIC "flyer" to all divisions
   - state bulletin - one issue devoted entirely to explanation of ERIC; another issue contained selected abstracts of ERIC documents
   - prepared bulletin describing EDSEP project for distribution to all personnel.

2. Does your Department provide any services to school personnel in your state in order to facilitate the use of ERIC materials?

Yes 18 No 18 No answer 4

If so, please describe:

- circulation of general information through Curriculum Newsletter
- develop statewide plan for dissemination of ERIC information
- serve as liaison with county office units planning to store and disseminate ERIC information
- research group serves as gathering agency
- through loan of microfiche or through selling microfiche, which we reproduce, to the public schools at cost
- upon request, we provide material contained in our files
- through presentations by our consultants - Title I ESEA program activities particularly
- Education Media Section; monthly bulletin what is available in ERIC center at Department's Learning Resources Center; advised what will soon be available
- furnish microfiche reading and reading-printing equipment in Department
- through recommended reference book reading; recommendations as to availability of reference material and the source; through recommended course resource materials and the source
- each consultant is informed of the system and the accrued benefits are extended to counties which are involved in research
- materials used in professional inservice programs and at professional conferences; availability of materials announced in professional journals
- annotated bibliographies
- articles in newsletters
- microfiche in State Library for easy access
- local districts encouraged to purchase own copies of ERIC materials
- Department Staff Library is equipped with a Reader-Printer; demonstrations have been held; a Librarian assists users in the Department and visitors from the school systems
- through State Bulletin to the Schools
- brochure circulated
- ERIC Center in Department open to all visitors with print-outs of limited amount of ERIC material

3. Has the EDSEP Project improved your Department's knowledge of the ERIC System?

   Very much 6 Some 26 Not at all 4 No answer 4

4. What problems have you encountered as liaison representative?

   - so many Federal programs are underway that it is hard to stimulate attention and interest in ERIC
   - too broad a scope of materials have been requested for a smooth working system. Only information of clear value to other states should be included (no specialized budget information should be included, for instance)
   - difficulties in locating new documents have necessitated running periodic inventory of what has been printed and then setting out to gather specific items from authors

- a lack of information on the practical application and operational structure of the ERIC system
- explaining the plans for sale of these materials after ERIC obtains them
- not enough time properly to pursue the work involved
- knowing enough about individual clearinghouse purposes and operations
- difficulties in establishing coordination (especially in departments in many buildings)
- procurement of automatic release for reproduction rights
- suspicion of Bell and Howell's profit motive in this educational enterprise
- some duplication of effort - clearinghouses and EDSEP project both requesting materials
- mailing expense
- need clear description in plain, simple terms of what smaller departments can expect of value to them from a state education department clearinghouse
- too much paperwork
- difficult to obtain slides and tape explaining ERIC in general
- need more definitive criteria for selection of documents in departments

5. What suggestions do you have for improving the ERIC System? (Each response is given separately from each of the states)

Keep the plan and design as simple as possible. Emphasize HOW it can be used as this is just as important as collecting the information.

Abstracts should be prepared by producers of documents collected with only format changes necessary to fit into the systems made by the clearinghouse.

Provide funds for personnel to be added to state departents of education to insure knowledge and use of ERIC system.

The system is apparently adequate but further methods of informing state departments of its use may be advisable.

It would help us to know how others use ERIC and what methods are most successful in encouraging staff utilization. Among other things, we would like to know where ERIC resources are physically housed and which positions supervise them most effectively.

More involvement of personnel in educational agencies through direct contact meetings with clearinghouse representatives.

The publications should be directed to the people who have use for them; i.e., state publications to state departments, etc.

Quality controls - my personal feeling is that half the collection is of little value.

Expand the emphasis - the people who are anxious to use the materials are not working with disadvantaged youth.

Retitle: It really isn't research nor is it solely related to the disadvantaged. The title scares away many users!

Clarify it on a practical basis.

Need for prompt feed-back to the documents accepted by ERIC Central from those submitted by the State. Also, a copy of the abstract would be helpful.

The ERIC system should take advantage of the established communication lines already in existence for disseminating information. The size of our state and its organization into county administrative units makes the Department of Education an ideal agent. Some consideration should be given to this possibility.

A more complete brochure should be available for wide distribution describing ERIC and its operation including clearinghouses, name and address of individuals to be contacted for information.

A means for wide dissemination of abstracts of studies and research entered in ERIC.

Establish permanent clearinghouse for State Education publications.

Charles Nix, Director of the Division of Assessment and Research in the Office of Planning of the Texas Education Agency and a member of the project advisory acommittee, replied in some detail regarding suggestions for improvement and problems encountered in his work as liaison person. These valuable comments are hereby included as he sent them:

1. The list of criteria for selection of documents was quite adequate. Our staff felt that all types of documents were covered by the criteria, and that they provided an adequate guide for deciding what was relevant.

2. It was much easier to obtain from staff members documents which are in published form, that those documents of high interest level which are in developmental form and which have not yet been published.

Some staff members seemed a little reluctant to let the latter type of document go, feeling that it was not yet in satisfactory form for distribution.

3. The whole process of locating, screening, and gathering documents turned out to be a much greater task than we anticipated. We utilized one of our planning groups concerned with research information to plan and carry out the collection of the documents. They contacted every staff member with supervisory responsibility in the Department, asking for recommendations on documents to be sent. Some of the staff members contacted had to do some additional thinking through in order to recommend all relevant documents. Some portions of this work can best be performed by a committee but other functions clearly need coordination by a single person.

4. This experience confirms the need for a staff member whose primary responsibility is the location and collection of significant documents to be put into ERIC, especially for large state departments of education. To do an adequate job of this requires that the person have time to go to each staff member (or at least those with supervisory responsibility), interview him personally, encourage him to suggest all relevant documents both published and unpublished, and then pull the whole process together to ensure that no major gaps are left in the collection. The liaison person needs to become and remain familiar with all sorts of papers being written by staff members, to follow their development, and to encourage staff members to submit appropriate ones for inclusion in ERIC. It doesn't seem that a part-time approach, or a committee responsibility approach, is likely to get the job done.

5. On the positive side, however, we feel that the committee's work in contacting staff members, explaining ERIC to them, and encouraging them to think about the documents they deal with had some very benficial effects. It made many of our staff members aware of, and interested in, ERIC, some of whom had had very limited or erroneous knowledge about what ERIC is. It made our staff realize how limited our intra-department distribution of our own documents is, especially such items as working papers, position papers, and other unpublished documents. In a few cases, it caused staff members to decide to refine and publish documents they had been working on but had not planned to publish.

6. Now that our staff has gone through the identification and collection process once, subsequent collections will probably be considerably easier and more fruitful. We have a little better idea of what procedures will and will not work. Next time I hope we can have at least one staff member who can be assigned a minimum of half-time to the job.

An annual publication volume estimate was secured from each department and is contained in Chart 2.

The total from the 42 states reporting is 2,279. (maximum volume) and 1,982 (minimum yearly volume)

DISCUSSION

It can readily be seen from the results of this study that the method chosen produced the results desired, namely (1) the volume and type of state education publishing was determined, (2) the participation of state education agencies in ERIC was facilitated by establishing a liaison network and "trial run" clearinghouse to which all documents could be sent, (3) a large part of state education department publishing would be of specialized interest to personnel in other departments and should therefore probably not be entered into the ERIC system.

CONCLUSIONS AND IMPLICATIONS

The need for a state education agency clearinghouse is shown by the degree of participation of these agencies in the study and the number of documents produced of specialized interest within these agencies. Plans are [illegible] to establish [illegible]

The desirability of maintaining this system of liaison persons and "trial run" clearinghouses until such a permanent clearinghouse could be established was recognized by the U. S. Office of Education and plans have been made to continue the EDSEP clearinghouse until a permanent clearinghouse for state education publications can be established.

SUMMARY

The ERIC system is seen by state education agencies as the best vehicle for a nationwide all-inclusive means of disseminating information about all facets of educational development. It is also welcomed by large departments with extensive publishing programs as the most effective means of sharing their materials with other states.

The following recommendations emerge from this study in order for ERIC to achieve its full potential within state education agencies and the units within the state under their direction.

I. State education agencies would like a more complete description of ERIC and of clearinghouse functions. This description, if in the form of a brochure, should be available for distribution to all potential users within the states. Liaison personnel would also like to meet with clearinghouse personnel in order to know more specifically about their criteria for the selection of ERIC documents and their possible services to state education departments.

II. The position of ERIC liaison person within each department is seen as desirable and necessary. However, at least in large departments, enough time and funds should be allowed for the responsibilities involved. This will be even more important as the ERIC system expands and more clearinghouses are established. ESEA Title V might be used for this purpose.

III. Equal attention should be paid by ERIC and the state departments to the use of ERIC materials.

ABSTRACT (250 words max.)

This is the final report of a study performed by the Center on Innovation, New York State Education Department for the USOE to determine the feasibility of establishing a clearinghouse for the publications of all state education agencies of the United States and its territories. The study showed that there was a need, that the ERIC system should include such a clearinghouse and plans are now underway to establish it.

The report contains a complete listing of the 1,854 documents submitted to the "trial run clearinghouse" set up as a part of the project and their disposition to the thirteen established ERIC clearinghouses.

APPENDIX B-1

GENERAL INSTRUCTIONS FOR DEPARTMENT LIAISON

1. Explain the EDSEP project and if necessary the ERIC system to department members. Be certain that department members understand that there will be no necessity for them to send documents to the ERIC clearinghouses until further notice from the EDSEP project office. Clearinghouse directors are being notified of the establishment of this intermediate, unit for state education agencies and will be assured that the flow of materials to them will continue. Units that wish to do so may still send materials directly to ERIC clearinghouses or may indicate those to which documents should be sent.

2. Request 3 copies of all documents meeting the attached criteria from all units in your department.

3. Secure an automatic release allowing reproduction of all documents sent on if necessary in your department. Include this with the documents or in a separate letter.

4. Allow no more than one month from the receipt of the letter for collection and mailing of these documents to the project office. (In the future, collections will probably be made at least twice annually in each department.)

5. Prepare an estimate of expected annual volume of new department publications of documents (of the type being sent) if this has not already been sent in previous correspondence.

6. Send all documents and correspondence to:

Mrs. Shirley Sargent
EDSEP Project Office
Room 331
State Education Department
Albany, New York 12224

GENERAL GUIDELINES AND CRITERIA TO BE APPLIED TO THE SELECTION OF STATE EDUCATION AGENCY DOCUMENTS FOR ERIC (EDUCATIONAL RESEARCH INFORMATION CENTER.)

Department members should ask themselves two questions:

1. What types of publications would I like to see from other state education agencies?

2. What publications in my unit would be of interest and use to educators in other states?

In addition, the following types of documents of current value, use and availability are deemed desirable for inclusion in the ERIC systems.

1. Instructional and Supervisory Material and Aids curriculum guides bibliographies manuals and educational services and facilities guides contract forms

2. Department Administration forms personnel policies, recruitment materials, etc.

    organization charts, functions of units, etc.
    policy or procedure announcements

3. Department Public Relations

    public information documents department periodicals and newsletters--most recent edition position papers and speeches by department members

4. Department Regulatory Function standards and regulations education codes and laws judicial and legal decisions of chief state school officers licensing regulations and evaluations

5. Department Supervisory Function statistical reports, charts, graphs, etc.

    data collection instruments evaluation instruments surveys (reports, etc.)

6. Research and Research-Related Materials project, program, and research reports (both interim and final) including descriptive materials from state-supported and locally developed operating projects or programs

7. Other conference proceedings and reports directories catalogs maps

   annual reports of department, most recent

The types of documents generally not to be included are press releases, internal memoranda of interest only within the department, announcements of current events or of purely local interest, documents not originating in the department.

GENERAL RULE: IF IN DOUBT, SEND.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE MEETING REPORT AND RECOMMENDATIONS

I. INTRODUCTION

ERIC is the Educational Research Information Center of the United States Office of Education. It is the first nationwide comprehensive information collection, storage and retrieval system to serve American education.

State education agencies will be one of the major users of ERIC as well as a source of documents. In order to promote effective liaison between ERIC and the state education agencies, the New York State Education Department received a grant from the USOE in July, 1966 to conduct a study. All state education agencies in the United States and its territories were invited to cooperate in the study. An advisory committee of representatives of departments with large publication programs, differing organizational patterns and from various sections of the country, was appointed. The committee met in New York City on October 4 and 5, 1966, along with representatives from the following organizations:

Central ERIC Office, U. S. Office of Education
State Agency Support Branch, USOE
ERIC Clearinghouse, Preparation of Urban School Personnel Education Commission of the States

(See Appendix I for list of the participants.)

II. PROBLEMS

After the background presentations, the committee addressed itself to four problems:

1. How to arrange for the collection and transmission of documents in each department.

2. What procedure to use to get documents into ERIC.

3. What documents to select for inclusion in ERIC.

4. What procedures to develop to promote exchange of information among departments.

III. SOLUTIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

The following recommendations reflect the consensus of opinion among the members of the advisory committee as to the best method of insuring the continuing flow of state education department publications into the ERIC system as well as some details concerning the functioning of such an operation.

Recommendation A

THE COMMITTEE RECOMMENDED THAT EACH STATE EDUCATION AGENCY MAKE APPROPRIATE ARRANGEMENTS, PROBABLY BY ASSIGNING A MEMBER OF THE DEPARTMENT TO SERVE AS ITS ERIC LIAISON, WITH NEEDED STAFF AND SUPPORT, TO ORGANIZE THE SELECTION AND THE TRANSMISSION OF AGENCY DOCUMENTS.

The duties of such a liaison person would be to assist all units in the selection of appropriate documents and arrange for their collection and transmission. This arrangement would eliminate the necessity for clearinghouses and Central ERIC to solicit materials from all units in each department. The liaison would also inform the department on a continuing basis about ERIC and the resources available through it. In addition, he should function as the "contact" person in the department for the SED clearinghouse, other ERIC clearinghouses, Central ERIC and ERIC users in the State.

Recommendation B

THE COMMITTEE RECOMMENDED THAT AN AGENCY OR CLEARINGHOUSE BE ESTABLISHED TO WHICH ALL DOCUMENTS COLLECTED IN DEPARTMENTS WOULD BE SENT.

The following arguments were advanced in favor of the establishment of such a clearinghouse exclusively for the handling of state education department publications. First, the volume, variety and quality of such publications has been steadily increasing and will continue to do so. Secondly, state education agencies have been rapidly expanding in size, services rendered and complexity. There is a great need for "cross fertilization" of ideas from one agency to another, for sharing in ideas for research, data collection, evaluation and a host of other areas.

The general functions of such a clearinghouse would be to:

1. Receive documents from all state education agencies,

2. Forward to each ERIC clearinghouse those materials in its areas,

3. Choose from the remainder those that might be of general interest,

4. Prepare them for inclusion in ERIC according to guidelines established for all ERIC clearinghouses,

5. Monitor documents sent on to other clearinghouses to see which are included in ERIC,

6. Index the entire permanent collection of the clearinghouse,

7. Provide current information and service to state education agencies and to other groups,

8. Alert state education departments to emerging problems by monitoring the entire ERIC output for items of possible interest to state education departments.

The committee recommended that the value of this clearinghouse to state education departments be assessed after a period of time has elapsed. It also suggested that close contact with the Public Information Project, the Regional Laboratories and other suitable agencies be maintained and that their products and publications be included in the collection of this clearinghouse.

Recommendation C

THE COMMITTEE RECOMMENDED THAT THE EDUCATION COMMISSION OF THE STATES UNDERTAKE THE ESTABLISHMENT OF THIS CLEARINGHOUSE IN CLOSE COLLABORATION WITH STATE EDUCATION AGENCIES. IF THIS SHOULD NOT BE POSSIBLE, THE COMMITTEE RECOMMENDED THAT THE STATE EDUCATION AGENCIES JOINTLY ESTABLISH A CLEARINGHOUSE WITH ONE STATE EDUCATION AGENCY UNDERTAKING TO ADMINISTER IT AND SEEK THE NECESSARY FUNDING.

Since two of the major purposes of the Commission as stated in its constitution, are to provide a clearinghouse of information on educational problems and solutions and "facilitate the improvement of state and local educational systems so that all of them will be able to meet adequate and desirable goals....." it would be well suited to undertake the establishment of such a state education clearinghouse. Representatives of the Commission present expressed an interest in such a clearinghouse and indicated that they will explore Commission interest in it.

Recommendation D

IT WAS FURTHER RECOMMENDED BY THE COMMITTEE THAT THE POSSIBILITY OF OBTAINING TITLE V ESEA FUNDS FOR THE SUPPORT OF THIS CLEARINGHOUSE BE EXPLORED.

V. COMPLETION OF EDSEP PROJECT--PHASE II

As originally described in the proposal for funding, the second stage of the Project would be as follows.

> All states would be requested to submit to the New York State Education Department all available documents that meet these criteria (established at the meeting) and provide an estimate of the number of similar documents and pages they estimate will be produced in the next year.

Certain preparations were made in anticipation of this stage before the meeting in New York City. Each chief state school officer was asked to submit the name of a person in his department to act as liaison for this part of the project.

It was the feeling of the advisory committee that this phase should be implemented as soon as possible and the attached criteria were to be used by the liaison person to guide him in collecting documents in his department.

SUBJECT: EDSEP Project - 2nd Stage

We are most happy that you have accepted the position of liaison representative for your department and, as such, have agreed to participate in the EDSEP (ERIC Documentation of State Education Publications) Project being conducted by the New York State Department of Education.

The advisory committee for the project (see attachment to this memo) which met recently in New York made a strong recommendation that this liaison position be continued permanently by departments and that the function of such a person be described as follows:

1. Such a person would organize, with appropriate staff and support, the selection and transmission of department documents, to a central state agency or clearinghouse. Three copies of all documents would be sent which meet the criteria established for same. Collections would be made at least twice annually in every department.

2. Such a person would inform the department, in whatever way deemed feasible and on a continuing basis about ERIC and the resources available through it.

3. Such a person would be the "contact" person in the department for ERIC central, the State Education clearinghouse and the other clearinghouses in the ERIC system.

The second stage of the EDSEP project is designed to see how well this will work. We realize that you have taken on this extra assignment only for this "trial run" but we felt that you should know about the recommendation of the group so that you can better advise us on how effectively things have worked from your end and discuss with others in your department the possibility of establishing an ERIC liaison permanently.

(Over)

Attached to this memo are the general instructions for you to follow and the guidelines and criteria to be used in selecting printed materials from your department.

Please do let us know if there is any further clarification needed for your part in the study.

Let us again thank you and, and through you, your department colleagues, for participation in the project. We shall look forward to hearing from you.
